FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Acolyst is a New Member of the Amazon Web Services (AWS) Solution Providers Program Acolyst VENE uses Amazon EC2 to help Organizations Automate their Business Processes

Stafford, VA, November 28, 2011 – Acolyst is pleased to be recognized as a new member of the AWS Solution Providers Program, which is designed to provide marketing tools and training to Systems Integrators (SIs), Independent Software Vendors (ISVs), and other channel solution providers, to help broaden their suite of offerings and enter new market segments and verticals. Acolyst's SaaS data process management application, VENE, is designed and configured specific to the user environment, automating business processes. The application, running on Amazon EC2 allows customers to manage their data, share information, collaborate, manage documents, generate reports, and more. This is done by processing data based on certain rules specific to the organization's needs, called business logic and/or rules.

Acolyst's analyst and designer experts are trained utilizing a formal project management approach and blending it with extensive experience working with clients and projects of all sizes, across the different business domains and industry verticals including IT, healthcare, legal, financial, insurance, aviation, HR, construction, logistics, education, retail, sales, and more.

The Legal Matter Management and Project Resource Workload Management applications are just a few of the packaged solutions that are available and easily configurable based on the business requirements and processes of the organization as part of the setup.
